CONFERENCE OF Y.M.C.A. IS HELD HERE YESTERDAY

Great Inspiration Given to the Christian Workers.

FINANCES IN GOOD STATE

Prospects for the year are bright.
Plans of year discussed.

The preparation for the McGill Y. M. C. A. work for the coming session was very fittingly begun at the Fall Conference yesterday. The first session was held at 4.15 in Room A, and was a very well attended and most enthusiastic meeting.

Mr. Calhoun, the head of the Metropolitan Board for the city, and general secretary of the Central Y. M. C. A., opened the conference with devotional exercises. His talk was a very helpful and uplifting one, on the part of the seemingly small and insignificant things play in our life and character.

Much of our work seems to be fruitless, said the speaker. Now, our work should be fruitful, and therefore we must find the way to make it so. We know that in many fruits from seeds or plants the fruit is in the seed or the plant itself, and all we have to do is to cultivate it in the right way. If we are to attain our objective this year we must practise these three—work, thought and prayer. Our work is exposed to criticism from our fellow students and we need a constant exercise of judgment in order to accomplish the end. But above all, we must have the power of prayer.

Mr. E. A. Corbett spoke of the two-fold objective of the conference. "We meet here first, for outlining our work for the coming year, as it will be carried through the different departments of the association, and secondly we meet in order to become more conscious of our united strength and undertake the work of the year with the realization of the greatness of our duty and the presence of the Master amongst us."

G. H. Heslam, of Arts '15, gave his impressions of the Northfield Conference, which was held in June, and attended by ten McGill men.

The location of Northfield he described as ideal, and the meetings as simply wonderful.

Ross Wiggs, Archt. '20, described the classes and the sports at Northfield.

L. H. Derrier, Sci. '16, chairman of the Conference, stated the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. for 1916-17. "We intend to concentrate our best efforts on Bible Study this year," the Y. M. C. A. President said. "The primary purpose of Bible Study is to bring students to know Jesus Christ, and to attain this purpose we must promote their daily devotional study."

We intend to arrange for a speaker to give a series of talks this year. We have also decided to have a monthly Sunday afternoon meeting, and also to hold a students' service in one of the central city Churches monthly.

Rev. W. W. Craig, rector of St. Martin's Church, addressed the conference on "How to attain our Purpose." I will direct your attention, he said, to a simple and yet magnificent phrase which appears in the Third Chapter of 1st Corinthians, "We are labourers together with God." The idea suggested by this is the idea of volitional service; service is especially the volitional problem. What our service needs is to be emancipated by big conceptions. "The Bible is the book of big conceptions." "We are co-workers with God," is a tremendous conception. This implies the idea that we are here to help God.

Secondly, the Bible presents us with the great ideal of life. "The old mechanical ideas of the last generation, so strong, are vanishing, and we are rising more fully to the reality and glory of this idea." Our idea should be to bring men unto the likeness of Jesus. We can attain this end by intermediate steps and every little service we do brings us nearer to our goal. Thirdly, we need patience. By being impatient we spoil God's work.

Fourthly, we must have the idea of the reward before us. Not in the way of material realities, but in the fact that the ends leads us into His presence, and that is a sufficient reward.

At 7.30 last evening the second meeting was held, during which the financial conditions and prospects for the year were brought forth.

W. F. Almond, Med. '19, assistant treasurer, K. P. Isolainos, Arts '18, E. A. Corbett, secretaries, in short addresses, presented to the conference the finances of the institution, which are in a healthy condition.

To-day M. G. Brooks, '08, foreign representative of the McGill Y. M. C. A. in Ceylon, who has spent the last five years on the island, and now has the whole of it under him, will lead the meeting—commencing at 4.30.

It is hoped a large number of students will take advantage of the opportunity of meeting Mr. Brooks.

LIEUT. L. C. MONTGOMERY.

A news despatch from London states that Lieut. L. C. Montgomery, Med. '17, late of No. 3 Canadian General Hospital, and now the holder of a commission in the Royal Canadian Regiment, has crossed to France to join the Regiment. Lieut. Montgomery is none other than "Monty," who played quarterback on the senior McGill football team. When the medical students were recalled from the McGill General Hospital "Monty" refused to leave the unit, and was ultimately promoted to the rank of lieutenant, being sent to England to complete his training.

The college has one representative in the Union of South African forces, and another in the New Zealand Overseas forces, one in the Royal Belgian forces, two in the French Republican forces, as well as having the distinction of having a number in the Imperial service. Among the latter may be mentioned the following units, in which there are Macdonald College men: The Seaforth Highlanders, the 11th King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, the 12th West Yorkshires, the Northumberland Engineers, the Imperial Army Service Corps, the Royal Flying Corps, the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve (motor boat service).

Three Have Been Slain.
The college authorities have been advised that of the names on the Honor Roll the following have made the supreme sacrifice, Corporal Hugh R. D. Bailey, 13th Battalion, at the battle of Langemarck, April 24, 1915, (Student in Agriculture); Sergt. Morris T. Levin, (Poultry Department), in action, February, 1916; Sergt. There are two prisoners of war in the hands of the Germans—one civil and one military, namely: Dr. A. Grant Lichhead and Sergt.-Major M. C. Signoret.

The following women students and members of the staff are taking their part: Miss Vera Bagnall, Queen Mary's Convalescent Hospital, London; Miss Charlotte Jack, nurse in military hospital, France; Miss Mary E. Kitchener, military hospital in England; Miss Mabe, nurse in France; Miss Patience W. Scott.

The college has also had its tragedies in the way of men rejected and sorely disappointed. One man, refused ten times on account of his stature, passed on the eleventh trial.

The Honor Roll, with details as to regiments in which the students enlisted, is as follows:

Gunner D. M. Aird, 107th Battery, Canadian Siege Artillery.

THREE HAVE BEEN SLAIN

Corp. H. R. D. Bailey, Sergt. M. T. Levin and Sergt. Williamson Have Fallen.

Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, the School of Agriculture, School for Teachers, and School of Household Science, which is incorporated with McGill, and which was founded, erected, equipped and endowed by Sir William Macdonald, has an honor roll of which any institution of learning might be proud.

Revised to date it bears the names of 138 present and former members of the college staffs and employees of graduates, undergraduates and former students, and also of former pupils of Macdonald Day School. Practically every department of the college is represented in the list of names of those who have gone forth to do "their bit" in the great war.

The soldier boys from Macdonald College are with the units of the Canadian forces from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and a large number also joined the various Universities Overseas companies of reinforcements to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

PRODUCTION OF NATIVE

Canadian Tobacco

Plantation and Drying Barn of the Yarns Valley Tobacco Planters Cooperative Society, at St. George's Bay.

The Province of Quebec produces annually, on a little over 12,000 acres, over 10 million pounds of Tobacco.

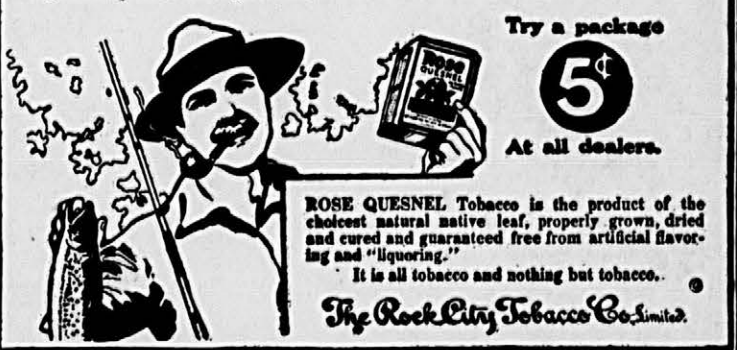

In certain parts of the Province, tobacco production has become a science, while in others it has remained what it was 100 years ago.

That is why there is good and bad native tobacco being sold. Some planters, however, and their number is growing rapidly, have found that it pays to produce a good tobacco. They have studied the different phases of tobacco sowing, planting, harvesting, curing and marketing; have formed Co-operative Societies, built modern drying houses for the curing of tobacco and have succeeded in producing a native tobacco equal in texture and aroma to the best imported. It is from tobacco obtained from these planters that is being manufactured and which contributes to make it the most popular Native Canadian Tobacco on the market, a delightful, perfect-burning, smooth and cool tobacco of distinctive fragrance and free from sting and bite.

TALKING OF MEALS

It is not every University which can boast of so useful and so thoroughly equipped a social centre as McGill has in the Students' Union, erected through the munificence of Sir William Macdonald. McGill men are all prone to forget that their Union is one of the finest buildings on the continent, and so far does this forgetfulness go that some of them are not seen within its walls from the commencement of the session to its close, a most surprising state of affairs when it is remembered that every undergraduate, by virtue of the payment of the universal fee, helps to support and maintain it. The idea behind the erection of the Union was the filling of a long felt want in the social life of the University. It was erected for the purpose of providing a common meeting-ground for the students at McGill and those who have taken advantage of the opportunities afforded them can testify as to its capability along these lines.

The Freshman entering McGill is apt to feel lost at first and possibly think that he is looked upon as an outcast. This is a mistaken attitude and one that should not be allowed to remain uncorrected. Every student is a member of the Union and should take it upon himself as a moral duty to make use of his membership in the most cosmopolitan club that the University possesses.

Apart altogether from the purely convivial side of the question there are other phases that will appeal to every member of the student body in one way or another. A billiard room that is furnished with the best tables that are to be had; a lounge room with spacious chairs and couches; a reading room with a full complement of current magazines, newspapers and periodicals, and a grill and dining room that is not surpassed in the city, all these should surely offer inducements to every student.

Particular attention is called to this last feature in view of the new, improved and efficient catering service that is in operation this year. The service last year was found fault with by some but even the most fastidious will have no complaint to offer this season. The meals that are provided are the very best which can be had at the price and the service will be above the ordinary. Why not eat at the Union? It is convenient to the University and the billiard, lounge and reading rooms give ample opportunity for the spending of a few hours of pleasant recreation after the meal.

By extending your patronage to the Union dining room you will not only satisfy the 'inner man,' but more than that you will be fulfilling your moral duty to 'your' club, and helping The Union attain the objective which prompted its constitution.

TO THE FRESHMAN

You are probably just getting nicely settled now after the rush of registration, seeking rooms and boarding house, and have an opportunity to take a survey of your new surroundings at the University. Possibly a few words from those who have been here before you may not be amiss.

It is a new community you have bound yourself to live in for the next six months, a community dealing with life at an angle from which in all probability you have not yet viewed it. Adopt your angle of vision to coincide with that of those with whom you are in daily contact; we do not mean that you are to be subservient, but rather that you are to be unobtrusive. You do not know the members of this new society and the vast majority never heard of you. Be careful in your choice of confidants; the man you are chumming with to-day may be the man you will not wish to recognize as a friend a year or two hence. Let the others be the 'hail-fellow-well-met' chaps and you be the one to sit back and take a calm survey of the situation; but do not draw yourself into a shell and peer forth only at rare intervals and in a manner that precludes any desire for companionship.

The making of your University reputation to a great extent depends upon your first few weeks within its walls. You will not be admired for your brilliancy so much as for your strong character. If you can be depended upon it will soon be known and men will come to depend upon you. Be a sport, not the blase, dyed-in-the-wool man-about-town species but the kind who can 'take the gifts that the gods provide' with unruffled mein. Be willing to do whatever work is asked of you either in the classroom or on the campus.

You are going to be the source of much innocent amusement for those who are above you in the University. It is an inevitable part of the training of every freshman so do not think that you should be an exception; you will be doing the same thing in after years. Do not lose your temper. Play the game, first, last and always, and you will get along famously while at the University and after you graduate be a credit to your Alma Mater.

NOTICE.

Will the gentleman who took a soft green hat marked A. C. F. from the gentlemen's cloak-room in the Union please return it to the Union at once.

CORRECTION.

In yesterday's issue, the Daily stated that drill was compulsory for the first two years. Military drills are compulsory for the first three years.

NEW WOMEN'S BUILDINGS.

CHICAGO, Ill.—In connection with the quarter-centennial celebration of the founding of the University of Chicago, the doors of Ida Noyes hall, a new building costing almost half a million dollars, to be used exclusively for women, was opened to the public recently. The hall is the gift of LaVerne W. Noyes, a prominent manufacturer of Chicago. It is in reality a group of buildings, for it comprises the functions of gymnasium, club and commons. In it there are swimming pools that have windows opening out to a private cloistered garden, shower baths, alcoves with kitchenettes, game rooms, trophy galleries, an assembly room with a practical stage, sun-parlors overlooking the midway plaza, and spacious rooms for the numerous women's organizations of the university. It has been the aim of the women of the university, who have waited twenty-five years for a building wholly their own, to make this building essentially a home, and the entire atmosphere of the hall is, in consequence, domestic as well as practical.

DAN SUTHERLAND BACK.

After a year's absence from college, Dan Sutherland, the big weight thrower and former Intercollegiate champion, is back with the Electricals, and will finish his course at the University. Dan Sutherland has been engaged in munitions work in Cape Breton during the year. It is expected that he will be out with the track team to clean up in the weights when Sports Day comes around.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ELECTIONS.

The election of the members of the Union House Committee will take place on Thursday, October 12th. The House Committee is composed of two representatives from each of the faculties of Arts, Medicine and Science, one representative from Law and a Billiard representative. Nominations will close with the Secretary of the Union on Tuesday, October 10th, and must be signed by ten members of the Faculty for which the candidate is nominated. In the case of the Billiard representative the nomination may be signed by any ten undergraduates in good standing.

THE TAIL OF A COMET.

The tail of a comet is not formed of the same particles which composed it yesterday or even an hour or a moment ago. It is constantly being renewed at the expense of the nucleus. As the long stream of black smoke from the neighboring factory or mill is being continually renewed by fresh particles of carbon released by the combustion going on in the furnace below, so is the wonderful luminous train of cometary bodies being constantly replenished by particles flying from or rather driven from the nucleus by the intense heat of the sun. Then again, how infinitely small and how intensely luminous must these particles that go to make up the tail of a comet be! This thought is suggested by the fact that it has been proved that in some cases the nucleus of comets which are only a few hundred miles in diameter will have enormous fanlike tails stretching across space for a distance exceeding 200,000,000 miles and having a bulk exceeding that of the sun by more than 10,000 times! Professor E. E. Barnard beautifully illustrates the formation of a comet's tail by "supposing" thus: "Suppose, for example, that the nucleus of a comet is composed of ice. Then suppose the heat of the sun to be so intense as to rapidly melt that portion of the ice globe exposed to the action of its rays, which are strong enough to immediately convert it into vapor, which ascends toward the sun. Imagine now a fierce wind blowing out from the sun, causing the vapor which meets it to be whirled out into space behind the comet. This will clearly illustrate the theory of the formation of a comet's tail, only that the nucleus of the comet is not ice, and the vapor is not water vapor, neither is the force which drives it away from the sun a fierce wind." The unknown force hinted at by the astronomer above quoted readily explains why a comet's tail as a rule points in an opposite direction to the sun. The Russian astronomer Breidenbach distinguishes three different types of cometary tails—those composed of particles having the specific gravity of hydro-carbon gas, and a third class having all the peculiarities of an equal mixture of hydrogen and iron vapor.

NAPOLEON'S MAGNETISM.

A clergyman relates in the Spectator that while working in London in 1887 as a curate to the Rev. Canon Fleming he was called in his vicar's absence to administer a religious service in Eaton Square to Admiral Eden, an aged retired officer of the Royal Navy. After the service was over the admiral took the clergyman's hand and said:

"Shake hands with me, young man. There are not many alive who can say what I can say. You are talking with a man who has talked with Napoleon the Great."

"Sir," said the curate, "that is history, may I hear more?"

The old admiral then said he was once returning with the fleet from the West Indies, and touched at St. Helena. His admiral said: "I am going up to Longwood to pay my respects to Napoleon, and the senior midshipman comes with me."

"I was the senior midshipman," continued Admiral Eden, "and so I went. We waited for Napoleon in an outer room, and you must imagine how eagerly I expected his entrance. The door was thrown open at last, and in he came. He was short and fat, and nothing very attractive, but for his eye. My word, sir, I had never seen anything like it."

"After speaking to the admiral, he turned to me, and then I understood for the first time in my life what was the meaning of the phrase, 'A born ruler of men.' I had been taught to hate the French as I hated the devil, but when Napoleon looked at me there was such power and majesty in his look that if he had bade me lie down that he might walk over me, I would have done it at once, Englishman as I was. The look on Napoleon's face was the revelation of his power. He was born to command."

Midshipman Eden was not the only Englishman "taught to hate the French," who came under the spell of Napoleon's magnetism. Two British naval officers, Hotham and Senhouse, were deeply impressed.

"The admiral and myself," writes Senhouse, "have both discovered that our inveteracy has oozed out like the courage of Acre, and the 'hail-fellow-well-met' chaps and you be the one to sit back and take a calm survey of the situation; but do not draw yourself into a shell and peer forth only at rare intervals and in a manner that precludes any desire for companionship."

The crew of the Bellerophon declared of their country's enemy: "Well they were a fine set of fellows, but they please, but if the people of England knew him as well as we do, they would not touch a hair of his head."

The crew of the Northumberland were of similar mind, saying: "He is a fine fellow, who does not deserve his fate."

PIONEER FLYERS.

The Hon. A. L. Sifton, Premier of Alberta, who has been visiting England with his wife and family, is authority for the statement that two Alberta boys were the first to fly in Canada in joining the Imperial flying service. They are the late Lt. Jack Turner-Bone, a McGill graduate, and Lt. Spencer Kerby, both of Calgary. "And," remarked the Premier, "what a peculiar fascination attaches to the breaking of new ground in any field." Within a week or two after these young Albertans had come forward, Canadian recruits for the flying service had become quite an old story. But they made quite a name for themselves, and the story, as told by Premier Sifton to a representative of the Canadian Gazette, is interesting. The interview took place in the Alberta Government's offices, the windows of which overlook Trafalgar Square—the very centre of the Universe to Albertans—and Mr. Sifton, the Agent-General, who also knew the flight-lieutenants, supplied details whenever the Premier paused, and added words of praise for the courage and enterprise of these Western boys.

Turner-Bone, the son of a well-known Calgary engineer, and Spencer Kerby, the son of a prominent preacher in the same town, had been great friends as boys. What one did, the other liked to do.

"They were like David and Jonathan," interjected Mr. Sifton. On leaving school, they decided to when they came over—had blazed the trail to Montreal and Kerby to Toronto. They graduated not long before the war, and when the war started were both in Calgary, following up the practical side of their scientific studies in a machine shop. The machine shop was its attractiveness as the great effort, and the Calgary boys soon as Canada committed herself to decided at once to join the flying service "somewhere" and as there wasn't one in Canada, they were advised that if they came over ("Incidentally paying all their own expenses," commented Premier Sifton), they could get into the R.N.A.S.

Representations being made to the authorities here that they had come from Canada for this purpose, and their "papers" being found to justify their claims, they were soon given a place in the service, Kerby being sent to the Dardanelles for patrol duty, and Turner-Bone to Dunkirk.

"Strange to say," remarked the Premier, "almost the first announcement made by the Admiralty, in connection with the Roll of Honour, was the death, in action, of young Turner-Bone, whose body was found floating in the sea off Dunkirk. But he had done good work and died at his post."

"As for Kerby, he was so overworked because of the necessities at Gallipoli and of an insufficient number of pilots, that his health broke down, and he has recently," Premier Sifton stated, "been invalided back to Canada with nervous prostration."

But these splendid spirited young men—they were only about twenty when they came over—had blazed the air trail for Canada, which has since been hewn wide, and their names will never be forgotten in the Province of Alberta. Moreover, the one who is left will soon be "fit" again, it is hoped, helped by the invigorating air of sunny Alberta, and will never consent that he can get back at the Fokkers and all their piratical clan.

HIEROGLYPHIC HANDWRITING.

A great French writer and critic, M. Jules Janin, wrote an hieroglyphic hand, "a nightmare to the printers."

One day he wrote a letter to a friend, who, after much pondering and squinting, managed to decipher two or three words, which made him think that his correspondent must be Janin. He immediately started for the writer's home at Passy.

"Ah, here you are!" exclaimed Janin joyfully, as he welcomed him. "You have read my letter?"

"Not at all," replied his friend, with a smile. "I have received it, and I've brought it for you to read to me."

"Well," said Janin doubtfully, "I'll try."

A writer in the London "Globe" charges it to the perversity of human nature that people who ought to do one thing do another. Men who write a legible hand (no one can accomplish more than that now), will use a typewriter, and others who ought never to be trusted with a pen order them by the gross and take the discount. Rudyard Kipling writes a neat, delicate hand, and Conan Doyle's is as plain as the proverbial pikestaff, but both use machines. It would have saved a deal of misery and helped to perpetuate a useful art if other writers of eminence could have been prevailed upon to "type." Unfortunately, the typewriter was too belated an invention to affect many of the best bad writers. Carlyle would not have struggled with a keyboard, but it would have prevented that miserable compositor fleeing from Edinburgh to London out of his way if he had. Carlyle's, however, was copper-plate to others that could be mentioned. Hugo's manuscripts, we are told, presented the appearance of a sort of battlefield on paper, in which the killed words were well stamped out and the new recruits pushed forward in anything but good order. Napoleon was unique in everything, even in his handwriting. His letters from Germany to Josephine were at first taken for maps of the seat of war, and his signature was an indistinguishable hieroglyphic. Byron and Dean Stanley wrote atrocious "fists," and it is said that Sydney Smith's was no better, although he used to chaff Jeffrey badly. He used to say that his wife Jeffrey from left to right, and his wife from right to left, but neither could make out a syllable. Jules Janin would rather re-write than attempt to read over again what he had written, and Montaigne could never read what he had written. The acute thinker-mended matters by employing a secretary—whose writing was absolute, ly undecipherable. Balzac was as big a sinner, and Dickens' microscopic characters, written on blue paper with blue ink, appalled many seasoned compositors. A terrible hand had Henry Ward Beecher; his daughter once declared that she had three guiding rules in copying it—if a letter was crossed, it was not an "l," and if it was dotted it was not a "t," and a word with a capital letter did not begin a sentence.

Macready, the great English tragedian, once wrote a pass for a friend, who left the ticket accidentally in a drug store. The druggist, taking it for a prescription, scanned the mysterious scrawl, and from it contrived a cough medicine "to be taken three times a day."

WILLIAMS DROPS CAME RUSH.

By a unanimous vote the students at Williams have voted to discontinue the annual cane rush between the freshmen and sophomores. Some milder form of a contest will probably be adopted in its stead.

A Frenchman was waiting at a railroad station in Ireland when a couple of natives sat down beside him. Said one: "Sure, Pat, it's down to Kilmarney I've been and I'm on my way back to Kilpatrick."

"Ye don't say," said the other, "It's meeself that's just after being down to Kilkenney and I stop here a bit before I go to Kilmoor."

"What an assasin!" exclaimed the shocked Frenchman, "Would that I were safely back in France!"

MCGILL MEN ON THE NEW PENSIONS BOARD

J. K. L. Ross and Major John L. Todd to Deal with Welfare of Relatives.

The personnel of the Pensions Board, which has been announced, is comprised of Mr. J. K. L. Ross, Col. R. H. Labatt, and Major J. L. Todd, M.D. Mr. J. K. L. Ross, who is Chairman of the Board, was born at Lindsay in 1870, a son of the late James Ross, the traction magnate and the well-known head of the Dominion Coal Company. The son was educated at McGill and then received a thorough business training under his father, and succeeded him on the Boards of many of his corporations. Mr. Ross is a Director of the C. P. R., Dominion Bridge Company, Lake of the Woods Milling Company and of the St. John Railway Company. At the outbreak of the war he gave half a million dollars to the Government for patriotic purposes, and placed himself and his yacht at the disposal of the authorities. For two years he has been on patrol off the Nova Scotia coast. Mr. Ross is an enthusiastic sportsman, was a famous footballer in his day, and is now a yachtsman and a fisherman of international renown. As a matter of fact his chief recreation in life is fishing.

Major John L. Todd, Professor of Parasitology, McGill University, was born in Victoria, but has been associated with McGill for a great many years. At the outbreak of war he went overseas and has been acting on the Pensions and Claims Board in Great Britain. Dr. Todd is a son-in-law of the late Sir Edward Clouston.

MAJOR MC KERGOW RESUMES COMMAND

On Return from Camp Hughes Puts Squad Through Famous Stunts

Since early in July, Major McKergow, of McGill University, has been in Camp Hughes as chief infantry instructor. Before leaving for Camp Hughes, Major McKergow was officer commanding the 6th Universities Company. While in camp he revolutionized the methods of training infantry on the parade ground, and the western men soon realized that at least as far as military training went, eastern Canada wasn't so very far behind. On the closing of camp Major McKergow returned to Montreal, and on Monday afternoon came up to his "old pepper gang" that he had told the western units so much about, the Sixth Universities Company, to demonstrate some of his stunts in training.

The 2nd platoon, which will soon proceed overseas, was beginning to think that it knew quite a little bit about what is known as "squad drill." In fact, they did know quite a bit, and could go with the best. But after Major McKergow had shown them a few of his "stunts" and put them through some of the elementary work, they decided that squad drill contained possibilities as yet undreamed of. Quite a few interested spectators gathered on the side lines to watch the novel method of training. The general opinion seemed to be that it looked funny, out of the ordinary, but that there was a whole lot more in the Major's methods than appeared on the surface.

TORONTO MEDICINE ENROLLMENT NORMAL

Total Attendance Likely to be in Neighbourhood of 450 Students.

Information comes from good authority that the total attendance this year in Medicine at Toronto, will be slightly lower than that of last year, although the figure is much higher than was expected by members of the staff.

The first year in Medicine promises to be very nearly normal, while the second is slightly smaller than usual. The enlistment of last year's first and second classes has been heavy, but with the return of outside students who were away the previous year, this year's third year is considerably larger than was expected.

The fourth year is quite normal, while the fifth year is composed largely of those students who have been taking the summer course after returning from overseas last February.

The total attendance will likely be in the neighborhood of four hundred and fifty—a shrinkage of fifty or sixty from last year's total.

UNION DINING HALL OPENS.

Discontented with the present meals which have been the rule at the Union for the last few years, the present Union House Committee have made a complete change in the management of the Dining Hall and Grill of the Union. Keeping in mind the desire of the average student to obtain their meals at a reasonable rate, and at the same time get food that is really healthful and nourishing, the committee have spared no pains in obtaining a new caterer who guarantees to fulfill those requirements. They feel that they have secured the right man in the manager of the Colonial Lunch on St. Catherine Street, and appeal to the men students for their support. The Dining Hall opens to-day with all new equipment, and is at the service of any and all students.

Meals will be provided on the ticket system, if desired, this offering a slightly cheaper rate. The Grill Room will also be open, meals being furnished a la carte.

MODEL THEATRES AT PENN.

Two miniature models of the Shakespearean theatres in London during the Elizabethan period have been presented to the English department of the University of Pennsylvania, and will be on exhibition in the library for a few days.

Although he has been listed as missing, Sergt. J. K. Wilson, Sci. Wilson, after being reported missing, was for a time given up as lost. The announcement that he is wounded instead of missing will be reassuring news to his many friends at McGill.

WORK SCARES SCIENCE '19 AT OLD MAC

Second Year in Camp for First Time.
IMPROVED WORK RESULTS.
Students Get Fine Grasp of Subjects by the new scheme of work.

"It's a cinch! You have quite a bit of work in the day time, but there is no studying at night, and after five o'clock you can do as you please."

Such was the description of survey school life vouchsafed to an innocent and confiding member of Science '19, by an older and presumably wiser undergraduate at the beginning of last month. To-day that disillusioned sophomore is looking for his erstwhile "friend," and when he finds him, he intends to swat his respected senior with the largest and heaviest piece of unattached furniture in the immediate vicinity.

Shortly before the date set for the commencement of survey schools this fall it was announced that a change had been made in the original programme, and that both the second and third year schools would be held at Ste. Anne de Bellevue. In previous years the second year men have lived in Montreal, and reported each morning either at the camp on Westmount Hill or at the Campus according to the work they happened to be engaged in. This system resulted in waste of time and a lack of control of the work de- trimental to the best efficiency of the school. This year's camp was there- fore in the nature of an experiment as regards the second year work, and both the amount of work covered and the increased thoroughness with which it appears to have been grasped by students in attendance compare favorably with the standards of previous years, and fully justify the departure from established precedent.

The camp was pitched on the ground occupied by the Third Year camp a year ago—a narrow strip of turf be- tween the Ottawa River and the Ste. Anne Road, shaded by large trees and in easy reach of the Macdonald College buildings. The same arrangements for board were made as in the previous session—two meals at Macdonald and one at a local hotel. The manage- ment of the latter institution seemed to labour under the strange delusion that all members of the party possessed an insatiable appetite for cold soup, stew and corn, and these three old friends greeted the weary students night after night. The Macdonald au- thorities on the other hand had formed a better estimate of McGill appetites than they possessed last session, and none of those attending the camp had anything but praise for the meals ob- tained at the college.

Early in the month the members of both years realized that they were due for hard work, and plenty of it. The Third Year men proceeded to tow H. B. C.S. "Bunt" up stream, and tackled the mysteries of current mea- surements, while the sophomores were initiated into the gentle arts of chain- ing and levelling. As time went on the notes began to accumulate and towards the end of the period it is reported that some parties worked into the "three sma' hours" in the effort to overtake the rapidly growing pile of notes waiting to be transcribed.

Throughout the camp work was the predominant feature, but there was also sufficient time for the athletic side of camp life. A spring board was mounted on the diving platform, and after a failure or two a plank was found which was strong enough to stand the strain. In the Sports Day, held on September 23rd, the Second Year men succeeded in defeating the Juniors, though in view of their rela- tive numbers the Third Year put up a same fight. Besch, Scott and Walsh made the bulk of the points scored for their respective years.

Owing to the absence of Mr. Kelly, who has obtained a commission in an overseas unit, the camp was in charge of F. J. Cronk, Sci. '14, and the success of the school is largely due to his persistent energy. He was as- sisted by Dr. Sullivan in the hydro- graphic work, and farm survey; Prof. Willard was in charge of the railway work, while H. A. Cater, E. J. Lowe and A. Hodgson, all of Science '17, handled the remainder of the Second Year subjects.

HOW REGISTRATION FIGURES COMPARE WITH LAST YEAR'S

Big drop in registration this year due to enlistments.

No further returns were to be had at the Registrar's Office yesterday, al- though several new men have regis- tered in all faculties. There were not enough of them to make very much difference in the returns published yes- terday. Figures show that the to- tals in Arts are 286, divided as fol- lows:

First Year	150
Second Year	71
Third Year	28
Fourth Year	37

The total registration in last year's session was 415, of which 123 were R. V. C. girls. Rumor has it that the R. V. C. registration this year is very large, so much so in fact, that some difficulty is being had to accommodate the residents at the Royal Victoria College. Though no figures as to the number of women students are to be had, it is probable that there will be in attendance, this year at least 130. This would leave about 156 men stu- dents in the four years, as against 292 in the session of 1915-16.

In Applied Science, the drop is about proportional to that of the men stu- dents of Arts. From an attendance last year of 327 it has dropped to the low level of 182, by the latest returns obtained from the Engineering Build- ing yesterday afternoon. The greatest loss was suffered by the present Sec- ond Year, no less than 40 not having returned so far this year. The Science lists by years and comparison with last year follow.

1915-16.	1916-17.
First Year	100
Second Year	52
Third Year	100
Fourth Year	75

While the returns from Medicine are as yet by no means complete, the indications are, from the present fig- ures, (174), that there will be at least 100 less this year in the faculty. This figure includes the School of Dentistry. Law has 31 registered this year as compared with 63 last session. No figures are to be had re the registration at Macdonald, but it will hardly be more than 90 at the most. Present indications point to a max- imum of about 800 this year, unless a very unusual late registration takes place.

THE PARSON OF PANAMINT.

Old and crooked-legged, bent and blue-eyed, the pitiful figure of the broken-down mining town inebriate, in "The Parson of Panamint," stumbles in his distressing delirium. Reaching blindly for support, he brushes against a Mexican who savagely throws the poor wretch to one side and passes on. Painfully ludicrous are the feeble drunkard's struggles to prevent his collapse and as the spectator's sympathies are aroused, the parson is seen coming down the street. There is no hesitation in the parson's manner when he sees the sufferer and the call of the distressed. Gentle but strong hands lift the fallen one. Through his drink crazed mind passes the understanding that here is a true friend, and in one upward questioning look to the noble face above him is expressed the thanks—that cannot be expressed in words. This Pat-las-Paramount photoplay coming to the Windsor Photo Plays Theatre is filled with scenes of heart-interest and the big realities of life. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 5, 6 and 7.

SHIELDING SHADOW.

The initial episode of the wonder serial, "The Shielding Shadow," released by Pathe and produced by Astra, deals with the adventures and the love affair of Jerry Carson and Leontine Walcott. The story in brief is as follows: Jerry Carson, American novelist, while in the Bahamas finds a message in a bottle washed up by the sea, signed by Joseph Dexter, recognized as a master of synthetic chemistry. It states that Dexter had found the treasure of Sir Henry Morgan, the Buc, caner, on the South Atlantic rock, known as Ravenger Ledge. Much against the wish of his sweetheart, Leontine Walcott, Jerry starts out from Porto Delgado to seek this treasure. Leontine also is wooed by Sebastian Navarro, an Argentine, but she promises to be true to Jerry.

On his voyage, the Portland Girl is burned and Jerry is the only one saved. John Walcott, Leontine's father, disapproves of Jerry, and favors Sebastian. Walcott's business affairs are in bad shape and as Sebastian is a wealthy man, he hopes to wed his daughter to the Argentine and thus secure the money he needs. Later when the report is spread that the Portland Girl has been lost with all hands, Walcott tries to persuade Leontine to marry Sebastian. Jerry picked up by a tramp ship from the rock on which he had landed, is put ashore near Porto Delgado, and makes his way to that place. He reaches Leontine's home just as Diego Navarro, Sebastian's brother, is telling her that Jerry had borrowed money from his brother which he had failed to return after selling the property pledged for the loan. He shows her a supposed receipt for a large sum advanced by Sebastian to Jerry. The document was forged by One Lamp

Louie. The signature does not deceive Leontine, who defends her sweetheart. Jerry at this moment appears in person and is welcomed by Leontine. He tries to get the receipt from Diego, and when the latter refuses to give it up, Jerry asks Leontine to leave the room. When she does, Diego flings himself on Jerry, and in defending himself Jerry throws Diego to the floor, and the latter strikes his head upon an iron ornament.

AT THE ST. DENIS.

There is another great story to appear at the St. Denis, in which Madame Rejane will appear. It is entitled "Alsace." It is a story that is purely imaginative, and was written before the war between France and Germany, but it tells with considerable realism the acts of desecration and slaughter that have been committed in the two lost provinces of Alsace and Lorraine. Madame Rejane herself needs no introduction. She is one of the stars of the French theatre. In the cast supporting Madame Rejane are Mlle. Flori, of the Theatre Rejane; Mme. Jalabert, of the Theatre des Champs-Elysees; Madame Miller, of the Theatre Antoine; M. Dieudonne, of the Theatre Nationale de l'Odeon; M. Bosman, of the Theatre Rejane; M. Barbier, of the Theatre de l'Ambigu, and M. Hardoux, of the Theatre des Nouveaux. This cast is one of undisputed quality picked for their special parts and directed by an able man. The scenes are laid in Alsace and the theme is one in which mother love and love of country form the principal notes. Comments from the leading Paris newspapers are enthusiastic in their approval.

In response to numerous requests, Mr. Perry, manager of the St. Denis, has at his own expense, provided French titles for this film. This has meant a lot of money and for the continuation of this policy or anything like it, this picture must receive great support. It is undoubtedly worthy of it.

CAPT. (REV.) McINNIS.

Captain J. L. McInnis, B.A., B.D., chaplain of the 207th Battalion, is a son of the Rev. John McInnis, of the Presbyterian Church, Granum, Alberta. Had it not been for the fact that he suffered an attack of typhoid fever, fever, he would have gone overseas as a private with one of the first battalions leaving Canada for the front.

When Mr. McInnis was appointed to the "Athletes" as chaplain, he went to Kingston and qualified in the Officers' Training Course.

The Captain is a graduate in Arts (1912) of McGill University, and a graduate in Theology (1915), of the Presbyterian College, Montreal. He won the Travelling Fellowship of the Montreal Presbyterian Colleges and spent one year at the Union Seminary, New York City.

Lieut. Allan J. Macmillan, past student, who was a caller at the Union a few days ago, has certainly been playing in hard luck since he donned khaki. Enlisting originally as an officer in the 60th Battalion at Belleville, Ont., he was seized with illness when that unit went overseas, and had no sooner recovered than he met with somewhat serious injury by his horse rolling upon him at Renfrew, where he was at the time attached to the 240th Battalion. At the present time Lieut. Macmillan, who is a former member of the editorial staff of McGill Daily, is awaiting orders to proceed overseas with a draft of officers from Kingston.

McGILL MEN ARE INTERESTED IN JEWISH SCHOOL

Night Instruction in Subjects usually taught by the average University.

Some of the Jewish students at McGill as well as a number of the members of the Jewish community in Montreal are attempting to supply a long-felt want to their fellow citizens along the lines of higher education. It is the intention of those interested to establish a school of higher learning analogous to the modern university. The curriculum will cover all of the subjects usually included in that of the usual university course, with special adaptation to the specific needs of those attending. The classes that are to be reached in a more particular manner are those whose work precludes any possibility of attending a day school; on this account the instructions will be given at night. The language used will be Yiddish, but this will not be used exclusively.

The work of organization is well in hand at present, and it is confidently expected that lectures will be delivered in the course of a very few weeks. As yet a suitable building has not been secured, but negotiations are pending for the renting of a local public school. The members of the staff so far appointed include the following: S. Vineberg, Ph.D., Law '16; Dr. Kirsh; Dr. and Mrs. Ortenberg; J. A. Livinson, M.A., and in all probability a number of students who are at present attending McGill.

ARTS READING ROOM.

For the first time in several years, the reading room of the Arts Undergraduates Society was opened with all the magazines in place.

Lieut. Walter S. Sutherland, Sci. '16, attached to the training depot of the Canadian Engineers, was in the city yesterday, proceeding to Ottawa, whither the depot has been removed. He is limping as the result of being kicked by his horse.

LIEUT. PAT KENNEDY.

Flight Sub-Lieut. Pat Kennedy, Law '17, who went overseas a year ago and was accepted for service with the Royal Naval Air Service, is now in hospital at Sleaford, England, suffering from pneumonia, according to advices which have been received here. Lieut. Kennedy played senior football with McGill in 1914, being also well known at Queen's University as an athlete.

G. Irvine Bailles, Sci. '17, who went overseas and served at the front with the 60th Battalion, has been transferred to a squadron of the Royal Flying Corps.

M. C. DeRoche, Med. '19, is in Toronto, taking a course in aviation at the school of flying at Long Branch.

Eric A. Leslie, Sci. '16, is training at Halifax for a commission in the Siege Artillery.
